This price, the highest reached by cotton for any delivery since the Civil war, and exceeding by nearly two and one-half cents per pound the highest figure reached in the famous buil year of 1963-1904, which until now had stood as a standard of comparison, was regarded by many as the culminating point of the buil movement in progress here for the past six months, during a season which will go down as the most spectacular in the annals of the cotton trade since war times.

Not a great many bales—perhaps 15,000—actually changed hands on the advance from 18.82, the closing price of last week, to 20 cents for August this morning. At 20 cents an offer from W. P. Brown, one of the buil lenders to sell one hundred thousand bales checked the upward movement, and it was the general impression around the ring that this was a level fixed in the open market as a basis for settlement of the entire August interest remaining.

Washington. Aug. 22.—Leprosy, the unconquered scourge of the ages, is making what is believed to be its last stand against science. From Molokai, the carol island prison for lepers in the Hawatian group, it is announced that three surgeons of the United States public health and marine hospital service, after months of toil, have grown leper bacilli in pure culture, contirming the assertion of Dr. Moses T. Clegg, who declared less than a year ago at Manila that he had found that the bacillus could be cultivated outside the human body.

This achievement of the scientists at the government's leprosy investigation station is the first step in the production of a vaccine or a serum for the cure or prevention of leprosy. Precisely the same ground has been covered by the men who evolved the diphtheria antitoxin and the serum for tetanus.
